Messy Holy Week and Easter

On the Saturday before Palm Sunday we organised a virtual Messy Cathedral. Five groups signed up for the session and received the necessary resources in advance. As this was via Zoom it gave people from outside the local area an opportunity to attend with one household taking part in York. Tim Carroll, the cathedral's curate, recorded his contribution, telling the story of Holy Week and Easter, which we were able to play in at appropriate times. During the session there were also crafts for the participants to join in with, including making a paper palm leaf. Our prayer activity included writing prayers on a torn paper cross.

Images of Easter online activities

Each day during Holy Week we posted an activity sheet on our website and via social media to help explain different symbols connected with Easter.

Adult Education

We have been working with The Centre for the Study of Christianity and Culture, at York University, as part of their Engaging with Place and Managing Space project. As part of this project we designed leaflets explaining Wakefield Cathedral as a Christian place of worship for adults who might have no previous knowledge of Christianity. The leaflets were then printed for the cathedral to use in the future.
